FEDERAL REC AREAS GIVE FOURTH-GRADERS FREE PASS

BY ALISON DAROSA

It's back to school season, and for fourth-graders, getting an education is already paying off. All fourth-graders nationwide (including home-schooled youngsters) can get free admission for themselves, their families and friends, at more than 2,000 federal recreation areas — including all national parks, forests, wildlife refuges and marine sanctuaries. Students can go to www.everykidinapark.gov and complete an ultra-simple educational activity to print a personalized pass. (You'll need to print your pass; electronic copies are not accepted. Printed passes can be exchanged at certain parks, including Cabrillo National Monument, for a plastic annual pass to use again and again through August 2019.) Fourth-grade educators can go to the same website to download a class activity and print passes for their students. (Educators include teachers, camp directors and leaders of youth groups and after-school programs.) The passes provide free admission for the fourth-grader and a car full of family and friends at drive-in parks; up to three adults and all kids under 16 get in free at parks that charge per-person fees.

There's still time to nab a sizzling deal in regional deserts: The Wigwam Resort, near Phoenix, has rooms starting at $89 a night — with an end-of-summer sale that includes a $25 nightly resort credit for dining or golf, a one-time $25 credit at the resort's new LeMonds-Aveda Salon & Spa, a 20 percent discount at any of three Wigwam golf courses (or for apparel in the pro shop) plus a 50 percent discount on pool cabana rentals Mondays through Thursdays. The offer is valid through September. There's a $30-per-night resort fee that covers Wi-Fi, parking and fitness classes. The resort has multiple dining venues, pools (including a kids zone with two water slides), lighted tennis courts, a fitness center, bocce and volleyball courts. Book online at <https://wigwamarizona.com/offers-packages>.

Far View Lodge, the only lodging inside Colorado's Mesa Verde National Park, has an end-of-summer deal, with rooms starting at $109 a night, through Oct. 24, when the lodge closes for the season. The lodge offers 150 rooms with private balconies. (Ask for one of the 60 newly renovated rooms.) Spend your days exploring ancient cliff dwellings and other nearby historic spots. You won't find a TV in your room, but there is free Wi-Fi. The lodge has casual and fine dining restaurants, plus a lounge open from 4 until 10

Stay two consecutive nights in a Conestoga wagon at Yosemite Pines Resort in Groveland and your second night will be free. The deal is valid through the end of this month. Wagons are air conditioned/heated and include a king bed and one or two bunk beds, plus a small fridge, microwave and coffee pot. Bed linens are provided; bring your own towels. Restrooms/showers are nearby. Rates start at $179 weekdays for a wagon that accommodates four and go to $269 for Friday/Saturday stays in a wagon accommodating six. Check out the offer at yosemitepinesrv.com/index.php/our-specials. To get the deal, you'll have to book by phone at (209) 962-7690 and use the code WAG-ONINTRO. The resort is 22 miles from Yosemite's west entrance.

Eager to embrace the change of seasons? The historic Hotel Boulderado, in the artsy heart of downtown Boulder, Colo., has an exclusive offer for Union-Tribune Travel Deals readers. Stay two nights, with Monday through Thursday arrival through October, and get 40 percent off regular rates. With this deal, you'll pay as little as $119.40 a night. There's no resort fee, and Wi-Fi is free, but there's a $20-per-night parking charge. The hotel offers full-service dining as well as casual pub fare and popular lounges. There's an on-site fitness center as well as complimentary access to One Boulder Fitness (oneboulderfitness.com). Check out the hotel and book online at www.boulderado.com. To get the U-T deal, click on "Add Code" on the booking page, then from the "Group Attendee" dropdown menu, choose "Rate Access/Corporate Code." Here's where you'll input our exclusive booking code: BESTSDFALL.

The lakeside Tamarack Lodge at Mammoth has a "Fall Colors" package, starting at $149 a night, that includes accommodations for two, a two-hour boat rental (or two-for-the-price-of-one mountain bike rentals), a copy of the book "California's Fall Color: A Photographer's Guide to Autumn in the Sierra" plus a bottle of wine. A two-night minimum stay is required, and there's a daily $20 resort fee. Valid through Oct. 14, the deal includes a free dessert for those who dine at the lodge's lakefront restaurant. A bonus: After booking your stay, you'll be emailed a link to purchase Alaska Airlines tickets to Mammoth (MMH) at a 20 percent discount. Book online at www.mammothmountain.com/summer/plan-a-vacation/plan-a-vacation/deals-packages.

The Big Bear Lake community honors "America's Heroes" with free admission to its annual Oktoberfest on opening weekend, Sept. 8-9, over the weekend of Sept. 15-16 and on closing day, Nov. 3. All active military and veterans, law enforcement and firefighters, as well as their immediate family members, are invited. You'll need to show a badge or ID to get in. The Big Bear Lake Oktoberfest, in its 48th year, is one of the largest and most popular in SoCal. Learn more about the event, including general admission prices, at bigbearevents.com.

A bath and mural at Mikoku-yu onsen in Sumida ward, Tokyo. Artwork and immaculate tilework are part of the beauty of Japanese bathhouses.

BATHING

FROM E10 large towel and a small one.

- Go through the entrance for your gender. (You might want to memorize the characters for "man" and "woman" in advance.)
- In the changing room, undress and put your clothes in a locker. This part should feel familiar to anyone who's been to a gym.
- Leave the big towel in the locker but take the small one with you. Use it for washing and/or to dry yourself a bit after your bath so you don't drip onto the changing room floor.
- The bathroom has individual washing stations. The station may already have a stool, or you can take one and a wash basin from a stack. The basin is the traditional way to wash and rinse yourself, but now there are also hand sprayers.
- Wash thoroughly. The bath is just for soaking; since the water there is shared, you're expected to be clean first. Be careful not to splash your neighbors.

- Tie up long hair. You don't want it to dangle into the shared bath.

Now you're ready to soak! At this point you'll still be carrying your small towel, which brings up another rule: Never put your towel into the bath. If you've seen Japanese bathing on TV, people will usually be covered with towels, but that is only for filming. The most traditional thing to do with the small towel is fold it and rest it on your head while you're bathing.

Finally, sento and onsen have traditionally prohibited tattoos, which are associated with organized crime. These restrictions are loosening. Sento are usually fine with them, but super sento and onsen resorts may not be, so check in advance.
